

HAUPTMANN VERDICT IS UPHELD BY HIGH COURT

HUNGARY AND AUSTRIA BACK UP MUSSOLINI

Refuse to Take Part in Application of Sanctions

Copyright, 1935.
By The Associated Press
Geneva, Oct. 9.—The League of Nations alignment favoring the punishment of Italy for invading Ethiopia was broken today by Austria and Hungary.
Baron Piffel of Austria announced that his nation does not accept the report of the council committee of six under which sanctions would be imposed against Italy.
The delegate from Hungary announced that his country was not in a position to endorse the conclusions of the league council which decided that Italy has disregarded its covenants under the League of Nations.
These two announcements were made in a meeting of the league assembly which had been called to decide on what action might be taken against Italy for the war in East Africa.

Would Be Exempt
Experts pointed out that the opposition by Austria and Hungary meant merely, in the event of a vote favoring the sanctioning of Italy, that those two nations would be exempt from participating in whatever sanctions were decided upon.

CENSORSHIP DECREED
Addis Ababa, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Ethiopian government today ordered foreign correspondents to limit their dispatches to 100 words daily, owing to congested communications. A censorship was put into operation.

Italy, that those two nations would be exempt from participating in whatever sanctions were decided upon.

The league council previously had voted unanimously in favor of the report of the committee of six—but neither Austria nor Hungary are members of the council. Italy, which is a member of the council, was not permitted to vote because it was interested in the subject under dispute.

Dr. Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia the president of the assembly, opened the session by reading extracts from the council records.

ETHIOPIAN'S SUCCESSES.
(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

Addis Ababa, Oct. 9.—Ras Seyoum, Ethiopian commander on the northern front, reported early success today in maneuvers of three Ethiopian forces against the Italian right flank, claiming capture of an Italian colonel and 30 other officers.
The Ethiopian government flatly denied the following reports: That Ethiopians had invaded Entrea; that Italians were using poison gas; that Ethiopians had surrounded Addis, massacring the Italians; that Edgahamus had been captured; and that the war minister had left.

Damage Suits Take Up Time in Lee Co. Circuit Ct. Today

Damage suits arising from automobile accidents occupied the calendar in the circuit court this week. The suit brought by Mrs. Theresa Gehant of this city against Thomas Pollack of Naperville which was begun yesterday, was submitted to a jury shortly before noon today.

Three other actions arising from an automobile accident which took place on the afternoon of June 1, 1934 on the River road in Palmyra township are to follow. The first of these was to be started this afternoon before a jury in the circuit court in which Louise Plock seeks damages for permanent injuries in the sum of $10,000 against Herman Alber, Palmyra township farmer. This suit was tried at the April term of the circuit court and the jury returned a verdict of $800 damages, which resulted in a new trial being granted.

John Trough of Palmyra has a second suit in the sum of $10,000 claiming permanent injuries against Herman Alber in the same accident. The third suit is brought by H. A. Roe, administrator of the estate of the late Charles Ankeny, whose death occurred in the collision.

Seen This Cow?

The Dixon police department was last evening enlisted in an unusual search, in which they were still engaged today—a hunt for a red and white cow, bearing a new branded "B" on its left jaw, which escaped from a truck at the corner of Second street and Peoria avenue at about 11 o'clock last night. The animal is the property of Otto P. Schaub of Blairtown, Ia., from whose truck it fled, and although he chased the critter until he was winded he was unable to overtake it. His chase terminated at the corner of Galena avenue and Seventh street, when he was unable to continue. The police and owner are awaiting some word of the animal's whereabouts.

GOVERNOR HOLDS CONVICTION OF THOMPSON VALID

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—After conferring more than an hour with the mother, grandmother and attorney for Gerald Thompson convicted Peoria murderer, Governor Horner today took the position that the youth had been fairly tried and that there is nothing in the evidence to justify executive clemency.

The governor advised Ren Thurman, attorney for the convicted slayer of Mildred Hallmark, cafeteria hostess, that Thompson could have a hearing before the state pardon board if he desired.

W. C. Jones, chairman of the pardon board was instructed to call special meeting within the next three days if Thurman requests it. The attorney was to give his answer during the afternoon.

Mrs. Florence Whiteside the slayer's mother, and Mrs. Lydia Thompson, the grandmother, conferred with Horner.

In effect, the governor's position was a definite denial of a reprieve. He held that the twelve jurors and the Illinois Supreme Court have fairly settled the question of guilt.

Thompson is scheduled to die October 15 in Joliet penitentiary.

Thurman told Horner that Thompson is insane, that the jury was prejudiced, with two members having expressed preconceived opinions of guilt, that the defendant did not intend to kill the girl and that the fatal blow was not struck with malice.

The mother and grandmother pleaded that Thompson had always been a "good boy" and should not be electrocuted.

William Tyne of Woosung Called to Rest Last Evening

William T. Tyne, farmer residing south of Woosung on state route 26, passed away at his home at 8:20 last evening, his death terminating an illness of long duration. He had been bedfast since early last June. Funeral services will be conducted from the home Friday morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Patrick's Catholic church in this city at 9:30 with interment in Oakwood.

The deceased had followed the vocation of farming at the present location for the past 18 years. He leaves to mourn his passing, his widow and the following children: Miss Frances, Thomas, Edward and William Jr., at home; Mrs. E. C. Morrissey of Amboy and Mrs. Leroy Henry of Harmon. Two brothers, Martin and James Tyne of Rock Falls and two sisters, Mrs. C. G. Lehn of Chicago and Mrs. E. T. McGinn of Rock Falls also survive. The obituary will be published later.

Steward's Annual Baseball Dinner, Now Outstanding Event of Year in Village, Tomorrow Night

The annual baseball supper to be held in the new high school gymnasium at Steward tomorrow evening will be attended by a large delegation from Dixon. This year the American league fans of the vicinity of Steward will be entertained by the National league followers. It is expected that about 150 men will attend the supper and program.

Each year the baseball enthusiasts of Steward and country surrounding, make known their selections of one of the major leagues before the world's series. The names are listed and at the close of the series, the losers provide a bounteous supper and program for the fans who were on the side of the winning league. The annual baseball banquet which was started in Steward several years ago, has grown to become one of the outstanding social affairs of the year in the village. The ladies organizations furnish the supper and entertainment is provided by the hosts.

When the affairs were started a number of years ago, they were held in a small room over a store and about 20 were in attendance. The enthusiasm has increased until the attendance this year is expected to exceed 150 in number and the new high school gymnasium will be used to accommodate a large gathering.

MILK STRIKE PICKET SHOT AT BELVIDERE

Violence Flares in Several Sectors of Strike Today

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A farmer-picket was shot today as violence flared again in the Chicago milk shed producers' strike. The farmer was Herman Jures of Riley Center in McHenry county. He was one of a force of about 100 strike pickets who attempted to seize three truck-loads of milk near Belvidere, Ill.

Under convoy of deputy sheriffs, the trucks were en route to a milk plant at Herbert, in Boone county. Jures was hit in the side by a charge from a shot gun. He was not seriously wounded. It was the first case of shooting during the strike. There has been two fatalities, a farmer run over and killed by a truck, and Herbert Lesch, Wheeling, Ill., police chief, killed in a milk truck convoy crash.

Trucks Went On
An investigation was begun to determine who had wounded Jures. The milk trucks, still under guard, went on.

Several other brushes between strikers and milk truckers, presaged by the strikers' refusal of a truce suggested by Governor Horner, were reported from northern counties.

At McHenry, Ill., pickets swung axes to cut the tires of a truck and dumped 45,000 pounds of milk at the roadside.

Striking farmers of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin who were demanding a flat rate of $2.50 a hundred pounds, or 5.37 cents a quart, yesterday rejected the governor's 30 day truce plan under which a commission would have been appointed to study the entire question.

In rejecting the proposed armistice, the strikers at a meeting in Elgin, announced their intention of refraining from violence, but said they would continue to withhold their produce from the market.

New Marketing Agency
At midnight, Robert F. Marcotte, strike leader, announced a committee of 15 names to perfect a new milk marketing agency to supplant the Pure Milk Association as the official bargaining agency of the Chicago milkshed, recessed until this morning.

Queried as to whether pickets would be called off the highways in response to Horner's ultimatum, Marcotte replied:
"We wouldn't know that here. The only people who would be able to call the pickets in would be the people who sent them out, and we don't know who those people were. We went on record tonight as being opposed to any acts of violence."

The strike, which was called at midnight, Sept. 29, has resulted in curtailed supplies in Chicago. Many of the larger dairies have been obliged to procure supplies among regular customers. Some restaurants reported last night they had no milk to serve late customers.

The present marketing agreement provides for payment at the rate of $1.75 a hundredweight on 90 percent of the producer's base or about 3.75 cents a quart.

Arms Are Issued
After the strikers rejected the truce proposal, law enforcement agencies fearing renewed violence, issued shotguns, riot guns, automatic pistols and ammunition from the Ft. Sheridan arsenal.

Additional U. S. deputy marshals were sent to the area.

Front View of Proposed Dixon Armory

The above is the architect's conception of the front elevation of the proposed armory in Dixon, to be erected by the federal government, at a cost of over $119,000, over the parking space east of Galena avenue and between River street and Rock river.

Capt. Sherwood Dixon, commanding Co. A, of this city and a member of the state Armory Board, learned indirectly last evening that President Roosevelt has given his approval to the project, which will be constructed under the WPA program, and that the proposal now rests with the officials who have charge of the allocation of WPA funds.

Because of the necessary provisions for parking space under the building, some slight alterations in the plans will be necessary, but it is hoped this detail will not materially delay construction of the building.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF DOCTOR GOES TO TRIAL TODAY

Four Jurors Secured to Hear Case in Mutilation Murder

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Four of the twelve jurors who will decide the fate of Mandeville W. Zenge, young Canton, Mo., carpenter on trial for the mutilation slaying of his love rival Dr. Walter J. Bauer were accepted by both sides at noon today.

The trial before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington promised struggles over the 26-year-old defendant's guilt or innocence and over his reputed insanity.

Arrested in Chicago scene of the crime after leaving a hoax suicide note Zenge maintained his innocence through several days and nights of police interrogation.

The theory of the defense set forth in filed petitions recalled the intricate and subtle arguments employed in the famous Leopold-Loeb case and the legal and psychiatric battles over Walter Krausner and Russell Scott, slayers in 1925.

History May Repeat
Criminal court history was expected to repeat itself in a fight over the question of the "irresistible impulse" or "temporary insanity" as a defense in capital crime.

The state specifically charged the tall, taciturn Zenge with the murder of Dr. Bauer, professor of chemistry at a Kirksville, Mo., college.

Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the Cook county behavior clinic declared the young prisoner sane, but Zenge's attorneys were prepared, they said, to show he was crazed by loss of his sweetheart, when she became Mrs. Bauer.

Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Dougherty and Mal Boghin said they would demand the death penalty. Bauer's widow will testify for the state. Dougherty said. The prosecutor estimated the trial would require two weeks.

Joseph E. Green, counsel for the accused man, said his client would plead not guilty and that the plea would not be withdrawn.

Will Not Take Stand
As the selection of the jury got under way Zenge's attorneys announced that the defendant would not take the stand unless something entirely unforeseen occurs.

Charles S. Dougherty, assistant

New Minister

Concerning Dr. Howard P. Buxton, new pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here, Dr. John Thompson, minister of the "Chicago temple," writes The Telegraph:

"He is possessed of a vigorous and alert mind, and his thinking is strong and independent and fully abreast of the times. He is deeply interested in young people and enthusiastic in their behalf. His gracious personality is also dynamic and he is a sagacious leader. Dixon church is to be congratulated on securing him in the years of his virile manhood. I need say no word about his good wife for she will soon make her own place in the hearts of the people."

J. W. GRIESE IS VICTIM SUDDEN HEART FAILURE

Prominent Ashton Man Found Dead in Geo. Stephen's Store

J. W. Griese, one of Ashton's most popular and influential citizens, was found dead in George Stephen's store in Ashton at about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, apparently the victim of a heart attack, with which he had been seized while alone in the store. His lifeless body was found by Mr. Stephan near the lavatory under a stairway as the proprietor was preparing to close the store for the night. Coroner F. M. Banker of Franklin Grove has called an inquest for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Griese and Mr. Stephan had spent Tuesday morning in Dixon as witnesses in a civil case on trial in the Circuit court, and all during the morning and on their trip home Mr. Griese had appeared to be in the best of health and unusually excellent spirits.

Unnoticed In Store
At what time he entered the Stephan store, where he maintained an office, is not known as the proprietor had left the store twice during the afternoon, once at 2 o'clock and again at 4, being gone but a few moments each time.

After telephoning Mrs. Stephan at about 5 o'clock to ascertain if she wished anything taken home for supper, Mr. Stephan made a last trip of inspection around the store and stumbled over Mr. Griese's body in the darkened passageway. Physicians were summoned, who pronounced him dead.

Held Public Offices
Mr. Griese, supervisor from Ashton township for six years and a former member of the village board of Ashton, was born in Reynolds township May 17, 1872 and had been a lifelong resident of Lee county. He retired from active farming 25 years ago and since that time had made his home in Ashton where he took an unusual interest in civic affairs and political activities. He had countless friends throughout the whole county, all of whom will mourn his sudden passing and will tender sincere sympathy to his bereaved survivors: his widow, one son, Clarence, at home; and one sister, Mrs. Minnie Kersten of Reynolds township.

Funeral services will be held at the Evangelical church in Ashton

YOUR WORLD

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

HOW big is your world? No, never mind taking down the atlas to find out. The physical size of the world is the same for each of us, but not the thought-world in which we live every day.

How different people are in the worlds in which they live—some tiny, some vast, some petty and frivolous, the other serious and vital. It does not take long to discover the world a man lives in.

On the train the other day two young men were overheard talking, one an ex-prize fighter, the other a clerk in a small town. The talk of each betrayed, unconsciously, the kind of world in which he lived.

The ex-pug told of rings and crowds, of the fights he had won and lost—how a slippery ring lost him a prize. It did not take him long to tell his story, and he had nothing else to say—his world was small.

After the pug had left the car the other boy began to talk of dreams he had had, books he had read and men and things and events; and though he had come from a small town he lived in a large and interesting world.

Later two other men came into the car—one a lover of birds; he knew their names, colors, habits and notes. The other lived in a world of race horses; he knew the pedigree and record of every famous horse.

The same evening three friends talked by the fire, one a man of the laboratory who lived with atoms, electrons, and whose talk was more fascinating than any fairy-story ever told by Hans Anderson.

The other was a teacher and a writer of history, to whom the past was a living thing. He knew history not as dry fact, but in its vivid human color, and made us feel that not to know history is to be a child.

In our day there is no need for anyone to live in a small world. "The world is full of a number of things," as Stevenson said; and even if we have no money we can sail all seas—using books for boats. The average man today can know more than the kings of long ago. The boy in school can know more about the world than Plato knew. Read, think, listen, enlarge your horizon, live in a big, wonderful world.

Favoritism Makes Children Suffer

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Mamma, mamma, she didn't notice my curls and I told her and she just said, 'You get in line there and never mind about your hair.'" The memory was too much for five-year-old Peggy, and she buried her silky head in her mother's lap and sobbed her heart out.

So writes a mother from a far away city. A pathetic little story it was about the way the teacher made a fuss over some of the tots in her kindergarten and admired their curls, their pretty socks and their dresses. This youngster hungry for like favor, begged her mother to curl her hair so she, too, would come in for a hug or a pat and all little compliment.

Bursting with excitement she had trotted off to school. The session passed without any notice of the coiffure. And then, child-like, Peggy had said, "See? I had my hair curled too." The answer is recorded.

Teacher Knows Better

I shall not comment on the teacher who is charged with having pets and favorites. She may have indeed—and may show it. But she knows better than that, any teacher does who has taken normal or kindergarten training. It is in the first chapter, usually, on "Rules of Teaching."

In a small community she may know some of her children intimately out of school. To these she may have an extra word on the side occasionally. Even this is prohibited in a well-run room.

What impresses me daily is the sensitiveness of little children. The aforementioned episode merely demonstrates the quick hurt that may be inflicted unwittingly or otherwise on little hearts not accustomed to the ways of the world.

I detest sob stuff, so called, but I never call the heart break of a little child anything less than real tragedy. As a child gets older it is good roughage for him, or her, to get used to small slights and the inattention of others. But there is something about the early development of children so closely tied up with emotions or "feelings" as we usually call them, that won't stand much ruthless handling without leaving a permanent crinkle in the pottery of character.

Parents Also Are at Fault

Parents are often as culpable as outsiders. They hurt feelings unwittingly by a curt word or an impatient gesture at a moment when a little fellow has stacked his whole world on something important to him.

A mother once said to her little girl who had spent a whole morning making a pink "rope" of string on a pin-topped spool, "I can't use that for anything, Carrie. It's all dirty." Carrie carried that memory for forty years and told me about it recently. A father kicks over the garage his tiny son has painfully built with blocks and says, "Shame on you for playing with blocks. That's baby stuff."

I know that surprised hurt look in little children's eyes and nothing can equal it but the expression of a lost hungry dog. In itself the small drama may not be important from a merely sentimental point of view. But whole years of character and personality can be affected, and seriously, by a repetition of such incidents—and sometimes by one. As the years go on, a certain logical matter-of-factness develop in children. They learn to take it. Little that is not milk and honey. But in their pre-school years they can take punishment better than a slight, an insult or a humiliation.

When will people learn to differentiate between the "growing" child and the one of tender age and tender feelings?

Rheinboth, and Mrs. Oscar Berga were in charge of decorations. Tea was poured by Mrs. G. M. Pinch, and Miss Emma Houghton, charter members. Miss Madge Woolcott, Mrs. C. A. Dons, and Mrs. E. W. ## Fights Off Beauty Handicap.

Being a beauty contest winner was more a hindrance than a help to Miss Helen Wood of Nashville, Tenn., shown here, as it has been to many other such lucky ones when they got to Hollywood. But Miss Wood didn't let that bother her. She took daily dramatic lessons for months, and now she's signed by a studio and well on her way to success.

WE SHALL WAIT AND SEE

The president of the United States declared on October 5 that American citizens desiring to transact business with either Italy or Ethiopia will do so at their own risk, presumably as long as the war lasts. In addition to making that statement the president placed an embargo upon primary military shipments to both countries, the list including artillery and small arms and equipment, warships, military aircraft and chemical throwers. In placing the embargo the president anticipated the league of nations, which the following day was still trying to decide whether a war existed.

On Monday, October 7, the league of nations arrived at the conclusion that war existed, that Italy was the aggressor, and that economic sanctions should be applied against Italy. Presumably the league members may ship munitions to Ethiopia. Americans may not.

The difference is this: The American intention is to keep from being embroiled in the war through having to defend American ships in foreign waters. The intention of the league members is to stop Italy's aggression in Ethiopia so that Germany may have no precedent and so that England's "lifeline" to the orient will not be cut.

The effort of the United States to keep from being embroiled in the Italo-Ethiopian struggle does not constitute a precedent. Under President Jefferson the United States sought to steer clear of the Napoleonic peril by various experiments. In that instance the president ran afoul of public opinion by an embargo against England and also by an embargo against France, and finally by a total non-intercourse policy.

Finally France patched things up with President Jefferson, and we began trading with the French, only to find ourselves in a war with England, the War of 1812.

In the present Italo-Ethiopian conflict the situation is not parallel. It is not likely that if we attempt to ship goods to Italy, we should run afoul of the Ethiopian navy, since Ethiopia has no navy. However, England and France have navies, and if they decide to enforce economic sanctions against Italy to the extent of a blockade, we might become embroiled there.

If the anti-Italian blockade is made real, instead of merely a paper blockade, we shall expect to have Europe do considerable supervising of American shipping in the Mediterranean and perhaps in the North Sea, and we may expect mounting American anger as time passes, if the war is prolonged. However, at present public opinion is quite favorable to the president's action. The shoe has not yet begun to pinch.

The United States might have stood upon its rights to ship to any nation, anywhere, and might have backed up that policy with the American navy, and in view of what we did to Germany for sinking our ships, our rights might have been respected. However, a question of morality is involved. We may well question the morality of arming Italy so she can subjugate a free nation.

The whole experiment will be entertaining to watch.

MALLON VISITS PALO ALTO

Paul Mallon, one of the bright young men who knows what is going on in the United States of America, writes of a visit to Palo Alto, Cal. He was a Washington reporter when Herbert Hoover was in the White House. He does not give a word of direct quotation from the former president, but he gives a picture of a man in a dwelling at the campus of Leland Stanford university.

This picture we have every reason to regard as accurate.
He says Herbert Hoover is not a candidate for the presidency and will not be one. He explains that Hoover is not of the type of Calvin Coolidge, who could sit on his porch and smoke his cigars and watch the world go past, and add:

"The secret of Mr. Hoover, which the country does not understand, is the type of playing he has chosen to enjoy. Before he entered the White House, he had one hobby. He amused himself by trying to find out everything that was going on in economics, finance, and business.

"As secretary of commerce, he was the best news source in Washington. He could tip you on what development was likely to occur next in Russia, in the coal strike, in Wall street. He had lines out everywhere, personal contacts extending beyond those of any other man in the country. His home and office were open forums for people who knew what was going on. When he entered the White House, he changed all that. The responsibilities of immediate duties closed up the old avenues.

"These have been reopened. Today Mr. Hoover is again one of the best informed men in the country. He knows what is going on nearly everywhere. And he has added politics to the subjects in which he is interested."

Mr. Hoover never had been a politician, which accounted for lack of popular acclaim, and he wouldn't be even a little bit of a demagogue.

In conclusion, Mr. Mallon says Hoover's visitors find him looking ten years younger than when he left the White House, warmer, more friendly, smiling, and believe it or not, taking a humorous view of some situations."

Our principal reason for reproducing this much of Mr. Mallon's article is that it has been our contention that Mr. Hoover is not a candidate and will not be a candidate, and in view of that fact the participation in public affairs by our best informed citizen should be accepted for what it is worth, and not discounted as we habitually discount the sayings of men who are ambitious to hold office.

THE TINYMITES
Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

Before wee Duncy ran from sight, he heard another Tinymite cry out,
"Hey, it's a false alarm. There is no danger near."

"We made a big cow frighten you by letting out an awful moo. Come back and join us, now because there's not a thing to fear."

Then Duncy stopped and turned around. "Thank goodness I am safe and sound," he shouted. "I'm glad twas a trick, although the joke's on me."

"Gee, no more chances will I take. From now on, I will stay awake. You are too ready to pull jokes on sleeping lads, I see."

And then they joined the others who were wondering what next to do. "I'll take you on a ferris wheel," the kindly farmer said.

"The wheel goes round and round and takes you high up off the ground. I'll stay down here and wave to you while you are overhead."

Of course the boys all thought the great. Said Coppy, "I can hardly wait." But Goldy said, "Oh, not for me. It is a dizzy ride."

"I'll stay down here and look around. Something of interest can be found." Then Dotty grabbed her hand. "I'm going to stay with you," she cried.

"We'll see you later," said the boys. The girls then heard a lot of noise. "Oh, it's the barking of some dogs. Let's find them," Goldy said.

"I always have liked nice dog pets. Here's where some little fellow gets a lot of real nice petting.
There's the dog house, straight ahead."

They rushed right up and went inside. "Oh, goodness me," one of them cried. "I doubt if we are welcome. Every dog is barking now."

"I wish we had gone with the boys. Let's hold our ears to kill the noise. The keeper of this place will think we've started quite a row."

next story.)

DAILY HEALTH

HELPING THE SCHOOL CHILD.

Some parental responsibilities are obvious. It is the parents' obligation to supply the means for food, shelter, clothing and education.

Certain other responsibilities, though less obvious, involve equally important items.

For example, an army of children recently returned to their schools.
Until next vacation comes, they will apply themselves to the mastery of "the three R's." For months they will face class competition, the brunt of teacher, principal, and schoolmate contacts, good and bad.

How are these children equipped for their tasks, and whose is the responsibility for seeing that the children are not handicapped?

Past experience shows that a distressingly large number of children suffer from disabilities such as defective vision, bad or defective hearing, decayed teeth, underweight, and bad personal hygiene.

The schools of the country are doing much to overcome these conditions. School physicians periodically examine the pupils and discover numerous cases of gross disability. Principals, teachers, clinics and others cooperate to have the disabilities removed or corrected.

Thus, some progress is made.
But, as was shown in a recent survey made by the Commonwealth Fund, the progress is slow, and not far-reaching.

The condition will not improve much until there is greater cooperation from parents. Every parent owes it to his or her child to send it to school free of all remediable disabilities.

Every child, and especially the ones entering school for the first time, should have a thorough physical examination, by the family physician preferably, or if that is not feasible, in a general medical clinic.

The examination should include a thorough testing of vision and a good hearing test. For the latter, the audiometer is ideal.

Defects, when found, should be corrected immediately, otherwise the examination is worse than worthless.

Inquiry Fails to Reveal Reason

Mystery shrouding the cause of the air disaster in which 12 persons lost their lives when a huge transport liner crashed 10 miles east of Cheyenne, Wyo. remained unsolved after an investigation by operatives of the aeronautics division of the Department of Commerce. Here is shown the wreckage of the giant craft, which bounced three or four times after the first crash, strewn debris for 400 yards, the motors being nearly a quarter mile from the wreck of the fuselage. Wearing apparel is shown scattered all about the scene of the disaster.

Found Guilty of a Murder 6 Years Ago

Edwardsville, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—

Thomas J. Pohl was found guilty of murder Tuesday by circuit court jury here, which fixed his punishment at 15 years imprisonment.

He was charged with the slaying of Bryce Bolin. The case went to the jury last night after a one day trial in which Pohl did not take the stand.

Bolin was shot and killed in a clubhouse at Long Lake, Madison county, on Christmas eve of 1929.
Leonard Byington, a 'cuckoo' gangster, was given a 25-year sentence for the killing.

William O'Leary, shot and wounded when Bolin was killed, testified Pohl was with Byington at the time.

O'Leary said Byington shot him and Bolin when drunk. He testified that he then went to a nearby tavern for help and when he re-

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest.
It just decays in the bowels. Gas blocks up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel 'up and up'. Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

SPEARS PUT IN TOUGH SPOT AT WISCONSIN U.

Quarterback on Badger Eleven Quits Team

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Heave a sigh for C. W. (Doc) Spears, Wisconsin's football coach.

On top of all the routine problems incident to getting his wobbly Badgers ready to give Notre Dame a respectable battle Saturday the doctor's varsity quarterback, Clarence Tommerson, had "resigned today."

Tommerson said he had "just thought and I don't want to play any more football." Spears, however, said Tommerson could stay away unless he apologizes to backfield Coach Guy Sundt, for what the head coach called insubordination.

Tommerson's "resignation" promised to aggravate an already woeful situation at Wisconsin. The Badgers, rated as a dark horse entry in the Big Ten race, opened their season two weeks ago by losing to South Dakota State, 13 to 6. Then along came Marquette last week to rub in a 33 to 0 walloping the Milwaukee eleven's first victory over the Badgers in eleven starts.

Had Old Troubles
Spears had similar troubles last season, when Bill Miller, Eddie Jankowski and Walter Windecker quit the squad. Jankowski and Windecker, however, returned and are members in good standing of this year's squad.

The Badger practice session yesterday was none too encouraging. The Freshmen scored a touchdown on Notre Dame plays and were close to another when the drill ended. The offense, however, showed improvement with the return of Len Lorchin, a regular end in 1933, to the regular lineup.

Indiana's hopes for a victory over Michigan Saturday were heightened by the return of James Cavacini, a flashy sophomore back, who has been out with an injury. The Wolverines disappointed Coach Harry Kipke by failing to make an impression on the Freshmen in an offensive scrimmage.

Gophers Drill Defensively
Minnesota's Gophers were given a long defensive session against Nebraska formations. At Purdue Coach Noble Kizer made repairs in his backfield, moving Hewitt east to left halfback to replace the injured star, Cecil Isbell, who will be unable to play against Fordham.

Coach Ossie Solem of Iowa, indicated that Colgate will see a lot of Ozzie Simmons, Negro halfback, Saturday. Simmons has continued to play in his spectacular early 1934 form, and probably will start against the Red Raiders, Northwestern, which has an open date Saturday, started drills for the Ohio State battle a week hence.

Chicago looked past Saturday's game with Western Michigan State Teachers, Coach Clark Shaughnessy working his squad against plays Purdue is expected to use at Stagg Field Oct. 19. Illinois, enroute to Los Angeles, to meet Southern California, stopped off at Tucson, Ariz. today to get in two days of practice.

SHERIFF'S AIDE HURT
Carthage, Ill.—Mrs. Helen Bird, secretary to Earl Main, Hancock county sheriff, was seriously injured when she was struck by a car driven by Mrs. A. C. Reed. Police said the car got out of Mrs. Reed's control and raced across the intersection.

Witnesses in French courts are permitted to tell more than the truth. Even their imaginations may be resorted to in testifying.

NAVIN FIELD MAY BE MADE MUCH BIGGER

Victory Dinner is Held For Tiger Ball Team

Detroit, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A big slice of that World Series gate is going to stay right in the ball park where most of it was earned.

Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit baseball company, has announced that he would spend $500,000 this winter in enlarging the seating capacity of Navin Field so that his champion Tigers could play to a bigger house next season.

Navin told a group of 800 business men who paid $5 each for the privilege of crowding their knees under the same banquet table with the Tiger players at a "victory dinner" last night that his plans would add 10,000 to 12,000 permanent seats.

President Navin did not indicate whether the enlargement of the park would be accomplished by the construction of additional bleachers or by addition of another deck to the pavilions.

To bring the park capacity to 48,000 for the World Series, temporary bleachers were constructed in left field, extending over Cherry street, and shortening left field to 304 feet.

Fans complained loudly because of the lack of seats for the series, and some went so far as to propose a National League club for Detroit, so that allegiance might be divided, and enable more of them to cheer themselves hoarse.

Use Engineers
Navin wryly suggested at the banquet table last night that Detroit's automotive engineers might concentrate their efforts on an arrangement whereby 300,000 fans, the number who applied for series tickets, might be crammed into 48,000 seats in case the Tigers come back at the head of the league next year.

All of the Tiger players were guests at the banquet, with the exception of Joe Sullivan, southpaw relief pitcher, who was ill.

From Manager Mickey Cochrane to Joe Rogien, the batboy, they responded to toasts.

The players will leave Detroit within a few days some of them joining barnstorming groups, and others for fishing or hunting trips.

Manager Mike has announced he'll head for Wyoming, bear hunting again, but this time for grizzlies.

Luckite Favored As Steeplechase Gold Cup Winner

Ligonier, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AU)—The black thunderbolt, Luckite wore the title today of favorite to win the International Gold Cup, America's biggest steeplechase prize of the year.

The powerful gelding went to the front of 20 Gold Cup contenders by winning the three-mile rolling hunt cup chase yesterday in the opening of the Rolling Rock club's fall meeting.

Luckite trailed the field at the start but pulled up to win by three lengths from Morbus. The time was 6:22 1/2.

The chase for the $4000 International trophy donated by former King Alfonso of Spain will be held over the course Friday.

Packer, Cardinal Tilt Locale At Milwaukee, Sunday

Chicago, Oct. 9.—(AU)—The second National Professional Football League meeting between the Green Bay Packers and the Chicago Cardinals next Sunday will be played at Milwaukee instead of Chicago.

The schedule calls for three contests between the two teams, one at Green Bay, one at Chicago, and one at Milwaukee. With the Cards and Packers battling for the leadership of the western division, efforts were made to move the game to Chicago, but without success.

The Cards defeated Green Bay, 7 to 6 at Green Bay, in the first of the series. The third game will be played at Chicago on Thanksgiving Day.

MENDOTA TILT NEXT ON D. H. S. PIGSKIN CARD

Blues Held Barbs 0-0 Last Week in the Opener

Encouraged by their showing against the DeKalb Barbs in which they battled the invaders to a scoreless tie last Saturday, Mendota high school's football team prepared today to meet Coach C. B. Lindell's Purple and White warriors from Dixon, Saturday, October 12, at Mendota.

The Lindellmen jumped back into the winning stride against Belvidere by rolling up a 28 to 0 score. The victory placed the locals on top of the N. C. I. conference heap with Rochelle which kicked over the dope-bucket completely in an upset triumph over powerful Sterling 24 to 6.

Practices began in earnest on the Dixon high field for the Mendota game, Monday. In general the Dixon mentor was highly pleased with his eleven's performance against the Belvidereans. The Purple and White outgained their opponents in straight football and outkicked their rivals on defense being equalled by the enemy only in the air.

More Fundamentals
Another dose of fundamentals was in store for the locals this week with probably more concentration on aerial defense. Blocking in the Belvidere game seemed much improved over two weeks ago in the Rockford game.

Mendota holds a unique record for teams in this section to date. The Blue and Gold team has remained intact without a substitution for three games straight. DeKalb expecting an easy victory started the reserves but Coach Trees soon inserted his regulars when he discovered Mendota forging steadily toward the DeKalb goal. Thereafter with the Barb varsity in the contest the game was battled on equal terms. Rodgers, Mendota quarterback, and Gilkey, Blue and Gold right halfback looked good in the DeKalb game. They will bear watching by the local secondaries next Saturday.

Wins Wager

County Superintendent of Highways Fred W. Leake of Alton, and Otto Koehler of Sublette take the world's series baseball seriously. The former, a dyed-in-the-wool American league fan, naturally selected the Detroit Tigers to win, while Otto, a quiet and sedate Cub admirer for many years, was convinced that Charley Grimm's crew would float the pennant at Wrigley field.

The difference in opinion led to an unusual wager. The Amboy engineer wagered a healthy promising calf against a heavy, fat pig owned by the Sublette school board member. The latter is now obliged to deliver to Superintendent Leake not later than December 15, 1935, a hog weighing not an ounce less than 300 pounds, to be in the pink of condition. In keeping with the newspaper head lines following the opening game of the series, Superintendent Leake insists that the pig have a curl in its tail very similar to the one which the Cubs failed to take out of the Tigers.

This year's series was simplified by the fact that 1400,000 persons already were employed under the old emergency work program. This program, started by Hopkins after discontinuance of the old CWA, recently attained a peak of 2,500,000 jobs. A majority of these projects will be continued by WPA officials said.

Hopkins Far Short His Goal of Jobs

Washington, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Administration officials have counted 1,126,234 persons at work on work relief projects, including the Civilian Conservation Corps.

This number left Harry L. Hopkins, WPA director, 2,023,766 jobs from his goal—3,150,000 by November 1—but his aides said they were confident this week's report would show a big jump in employment figures.

Here and There in Sports World

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Jimmy Fox grins from ear to ear when you ask him how he'll like playing at Fenway Park. . . . Two of the best backfield prospects in the east are Jim Craig of Army and Jack White of Princeton.

Gar Davidson and Fritz Crisler can hardly wait till Thanksgiving day. . . . If gameness was all that counted, Al Roth would be at the top of the lightweight heap today. . . . Temple will replace Boston College on the Fordham card next year.

The Daffy Deans will be threeing any day now. . . . If it's a boy it will be named Jerome Herman. . . . Won't old Diz be the proud uncle, though? . . . He'll probably celebrate with a couple of two-bit-terers.

Purdue has introduced a pair named Isbell and McGannon as successors to the touchdown manufacturing team of Purvis and Carter. . . . Lou Little will send you any of his football plays for a nickel. . . . If you can spare a quarter you can get six.

Major Teams Fall
Although the football season is less than three weeks old, a half dozen of the bigger teams already are out of the national picture. . . . Among them are Tennessee, Tulane, St. Mary's, Wisconsin and Cornell. . . . There's no living with Gil Dobbie since that defeat by Western Reserve. . . . It made streamer headlines all over Ohio.

Clark Chagnessy, Chicago coach, says Lloyd Cardwell, Nebraska ace, is the fastest back he ever saw. . . . And he's seen plenty of good ones. . . . That public address system helps make covering Princeton games a real pleasure.

Is the depression over? . . . 400 working press reservations at the World's Series and more than 120 telegraph wires at the Baer Luis fight, is just one of the answers. . . . Celebrating their first football victory in four years, Knox college students neglected to attend classes the following Monday. . . .

Is Best Shortstop
Lyn Lary, kicked all about the American League, now shapes up as just about the best shortstop in the loop—Rogers Hornsby can take another bow for that.

Joe Louis wants to fight once a month for the rest of the year despite the fact taxes will eat up about all he makes. . . . The person worrying least about James J. Johnston getting fired out of the garden is James J. Johnston. . . . "Ho, hum, he yawns. . . . "Are they firing me again, or yet?"

CORNELL IS UPSET ABOUT GRID LOSSES

Warm-Up Games Not So Easy; Defeat Administered

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Gil Dobbie of Cornell has plenty of reason to be gloomy this season.

It was in early September that the mentor of the big Red team, starting his 16th campaign above Cayuga's waters, called the clan together and predicted that Cornell would have an "average" team. Coming from Dobbie, this was something of a boast.

Then came the "warmup" games. St. Lawrence, vanquished 14-0 last year, turned on her bigger rival 12 to 6 and Western Reserve followed with a 33-19 shellacking.

The "warmup" games are over now. Ahead lie some of the major teams with which Cornell used to joust on even terms, but which this year shape up as much too big to handle.

Syracuse, which licked the Ithacans 20-7 last year, is gathering speed for another kill. Then will come some of the best teams in the east. Princeton, Columbia, Dartmouth and Penn.

Cornell may weep with Brown, which, having lost for the first time in history to Rhode Island State, has Dartmouth, Syracuse, Harvard, Yale, Columbia and Colgate to tackle before the season is over.

Program Attractive
Saturday's football program, with most of the "warmup" games over, shaped up attractively. The football mounded in New York were caught between two desires, one to attend the battle between Purdue and Fordham and the other to see Chick Meacham's Manhattan outfit stock up against the classy Louisiana State aggregation.

In Cambridge, Mass., a large turnout was expected for the annual Holy Cross-Harvard game. Duquesne and Catholic University were giving the pickers something to worry about.

Kansas State and Marquette, Kansas and Michigan State and Dymond and Denver shaped up as Good Friday games.

Iowa was ready to tangle with tricky Colgate in another Saturday game. Other contests expected to prove interesting were: Penn-Yale, New York University-Carnegie, Minnesota-Nebraska, Southern Methodist-Washington-University, California-Oregon, St. Mary's-College of the Pacific, Tennessee-Auburn, Florida-Tulane, Duke-Clemson, and Maryland-North Carolina.

Mineola, N. Y., Has Unusual Killing Case; Motive Unrevealed

BULLETIN.

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. John Creighton was arraigned and held for the grand jury today on a murder charge in the poison death of Mrs. Everett P. Applegate after District Attorney Martin W. Littleton, Jr., said she had made a second confession absolving the woman's husband.

Littleton said she had confessed that she poisoned Mrs. Applegate gradually, without help from anyone else, because of a desire "to get even."

Applegate, whom she had implicated in a previous statement, is held on a charge of criminally attacking Mrs. Creighton's 15-year-old daughter, Ruth. He will await grand jury action in the assault case, which police said was disclosed during the murder investigation.

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. John Creighton, held with Everett R. Applegate in the slaying of Applegate's wife, confessed Tuesday, District Attorney Martin W. Littleton of Nassau county said, that she poisoned her brother, Charles R. Avery, in Newark, N. J., in 1923, a crime for which she was tried and acquitted.

Mrs. Creighton said, according o Littleton, that she gave her brother arsenic because he was "a cripple and a burden to the family."

She denied, however, that she knew anything of the death of her mother-in-law, who also was poisoned and for whose death Mrs. Creighton was tried and also acquitted.

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Inspector Harold R. King of the Nassau county police announced here that Mrs. John Creighton had confessed she and Everett R. Applegate had poisoned Applegate's wife by giving her arsenic.

King said both would be charged with murder.

The woman's confession had been made to him after she had been questioned all night, he said. Applegate had also undergone questioning during the night, but the two had not been confronted by each other, the inspector added.

The alleged confession was contained in four handwritten pages taken by King which, he said, was the "full and complete" story of the slaying.

King said the woman dictated her confession with no show of emotion.

Previous Poisonings

Inspector King said Mrs. Creighton told him she knew of the sexual relations between Applegate and her 15-year-old daughter, Ruth, which resulted in a charge of criminal assault against Applegate, but said the motive was "wholly unrelated to the sex act."

King declined, however, to say what the motive was.

Mrs. Creighton and her husband had been living with the Applegates in Baldwin, L. I., for more than a year.

In 1923, she and Creighton had been tried in Newark, N. J., for alleged slaying of her brother, Charles R. Avery, who died of arsenic poisoning. They were acquitted, and a short time later Mrs. Creighton went on trial charged with the death of Creighton's mother, also a victim of arsenic. Again she was acquitted.

POETS' CORNER

THE BOATMAN

As we draw near the river
Where the Boatman makes his rounds,
We wonder if the fare is fixed
In dollars, marks or pounds.

We wonder if his ancient craft,
Though we meet his terms and pay,
Will ride the waters free and aft,
Till we gain yon sheltered bay.

And should be reach that quiet land
Of peace and welcomed ease
With all its economics planned
And all its voters pleased—

Should we propose the mundane plan
For repeal of the status quo,
Then organize a flaming clan
To make the New Deal go?

A FRIEND

When things you think are going wrong,
And life has lost its little song,
The troubles always seem to end
When you can meet a trusty friend.

It's just a simple word or deed,
That comes within the hour of need,
From someone lovable and true,
Which makes more bright the world for you.

Eyes may be cast upon the ground
And spirits solemn and profound,
But when a friend walks down your way
There is no night, for all is day.

Life, with its brevity and grief,
Sometimes is slow with soul relief,
Then comes the comfort sure to send
The presence of a trusty friend.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DIXON, pretty, 23, is secretary to DONALD HORTON, a lawyer. BOBBY WALLACE, automobile salesman, has frequently asked her to marry him but Jean delays her answer.

At the Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARRIS who says he is in love on business.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, wants Jean and Bobby against spending much time in places like the Golden Feather. Larry is trying to find WINNY LEWIS, bank robber. He discusses the case with his friend MIKE HANLEY of the local police.

Sandy telephones Jean on a day when she has the afternoon off from work and they go for a horseback ride. He kisses her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

WHEN she got home that evening Jean discovered that her conscience was rather disturbed about that kiss.

"What sort of girl do you call yourself, anyway?" asked Conscience, indignantly. "The very first time you've been out with a man, too! And you're always priding yourself on the fact that you didn't like to be mauled and petted!"

"But that wasn't mauling and petting," answered Jean. "It was just one little kiss. And anyhow, it happened before I knew it was coming."

"Oh, yeah?" said Conscience. "I've heard that before."

"Well, it did," insisted Jean. "And what's the harm? It didn't mean anything. And he—he didn't even try to do it again, or—"

"Well, I must say, that's a very weak sort of defense," Conscience replied. "It wasn't your fault he didn't try to do it again."

"It was!" I drew away and I told him—"

"Oh, you told him! Since when did that mean anything? And he said, 'What would Bobby say?'"

"Well, Bobby just isn't going to know. And it isn't going to happen again, so what's the use of making all this fuss over it?"

That wasn't the most satisfactory reply imaginable, perhaps, but it would have to do. And the feeling of guilt that stayed in the back of Jean's mind made her especially nice to Bobby when he called for her after dinner, to take her to a movie, and when he told her good night, later, she let him kiss her three times to make up for it, so that that young man went home both pleased and puzzled.

Sandy called her up Sunday morning and suggested another ride. She put him off on the ground that she had another engagement. He called her up Sunday evening, apparently for no reason except that he wanted to tell her that she was tops. He called her at the office Monday morning and asked if she could have lunch with him; and when she said that she could not he begged her to dine with him that evening.

"Sandy, I can't," she said. "I'm—I'm all tied up this week."

"Yeah?" said Sandy cheerfully. "Baby, you aren't fooling me a tall You better get yourself untied pretty quick, or I'll come up there and pull you out by that pretty yellow hair of yours. I'm not foolin'—I'm serious. You're the nicest thing I've seen in all my travels, and I'm going to see plenty more of you. Pub lenty!"

When she got home that night, Jean found a huge box of roses waiting for her. And the next noon when she went out for lunch, she stepped from the elevator into the lobby of the office building and found Sandy lounging there, waiting for her.

He grinned broadly, stepped up

"Look who's here," Sandy said gaily. "Come on and sit with us."

confidently, tucked her arm into his, and said, "Now where's a good place to eat, anyhow? I bet you're hungry."

Helplessly, laughing, she suffered herself to be led along. He took her to a restaurant where she never lunched—it was too expensive for the budget of a girl who was earning her own living—and got a table in a sheltered corner, behind a clump of palms.

When they had ordered he looked at her with mock sternness.

"Now," he said, "suppose you tell me why you're ducking me so hard!"

"I'm not ducking you," she protested.

"Yes, you are. What's the big idea? Don't I wear the right kind of necktie, or have I got spots on my vest, or do I need a haircut or something? Why can't I ever have another date with you?"

"I didn't say you never could. My goodness, you're rushing things, aren't you?"

"Why not? I don't believe in being backward, when the prettiest girl in the whole state is floating around loose right under my nose."

"Well, but—" she hesitated. "You see, Sandy, I'm not really floating around loose. I'm—I'm really engaged."

And she was furious with herself when she found herself adding the words, "practically, any how."

Sandy cocked a humorous eye at her.

"Practically engaged, eh? Good Lord, baby, go ahead and be engaged. I'm not going to eat you up. I just want to pal around with you. No harm in that, is there?"

"No-o-o." The waiter set food before them, and she became very busy with her club sandwich. "But—oh, you know how it is."

"Boy friend might get sore?" Sandy grinned.

Jean nodded.

"Why, he's a nice kid," said Sandy. "When you going to get married?"

"Well, not right away," said Jean helplessly. "I mean, you see he's just getting started, and—"

"What's he do?"

"He's an auto salesman."

"Who's he with?"

"He's with the—oh Sandy, what's the use of questioning me like this? I've gone with him ever since I was in high school. I just don't think I—I ought to have dates, that's all."

"Aw, these aren't regular dates I'm asking for. I just want to see you sometimes. No harm in that."

But Jean remained adamant, and when the lunch was finished and Sandy had escorted her back to her office and gone away, she told her conscience savagely. "Now—I do hope you're satisfied!"

THAT night she went out to dinner with Bobby. But whereas Conscience, on their last date, had caused her to be especially nice to him, it all seemed to work with reverse English this time, and she found herself being irritable and disagreeable.

As they were finishing their dessert, Bobby looked at her anxiously.

"What's the matter tonight, honey?" he asked. "Aren't you feeling well?"

"I'm all right," she said. "Just—just a little tired, or something, I guess."

He looked at her fondly.

"You're working too hard," he announced. "Honey, when you going to quit that old office and let me take care of you? That's what you need."

"Please, Bobby," she said. "Let's not argue about it tonight. Let's—let's go dance somewhere, or something, and not quarrel."

"Good idea," said Bobby. "Look—how about going back to the Golden Feather again and seeing life in the raw?"

She hesitated; and then told herself, "Oh, for pity sakes, what's the matter with you? You probably won't bump into Sandy there, and if you do, what of it?"

Aloud she said, "All right—let's." So they went out, got a taxi, and went to the night club.

THE hour was early, and there was only a handful of people scattered about in the club. They followed the headwaiter to a table along the wall, and as they reached it Bobby glanced idly at the couple at the next table. His face lit up with recognition, and Jean heard him say, "Why—hello there."

She looked. There sat Sandy, with a striking-looking girl in an expensive purple frock. Jean was astonished to discover that her first emotion, on seeing them, was a small, instinctive stab of jealousy. Sandy got up and beckoned to them.

"Look who's here," he said gaily. "Come on and sit with us. Here—" he motioned to the waiter to bring chairs. "This is Eva Lewis," he went on, addressing Jean and Bobby. The girl looked up and smiled in friendly fashion. "Eve, these are—" suddenly stopped and grinned. "Doggoned if I haven't forgotten your names," he said.

Jean instantly thought, "He remembers mine but he's forgotten Bobby's, and he doesn't want Bobby to know." Bobby was completing the introduction, as this thought was going through her head, and a moment later all four of them were seated together.

The orchestra began to play. "Will you dance, Miss Lewis?" asked Bobby. She got up. "Okay," she said. "And by the way, it's Mrs. Lewis." They glided off on the dance floor. Sandy turned to Jean with a quizzical grin. "Dance?" he asked. She shook her head.

"Let's just sit here, if you don't mind . . . and since when have you forgotten my name?"

His grin became broader. "That was all right, wasn't it?" he asked. She smiled and nodded. "Your girl friend is nice," she said presently.

"Oh, she's not my girl friend," he said. "I'm holding that job open for you. She's the wife of a pal of mine. He's going to meet us here pretty quick."

He looked toward the door. "There he is now."

A slight, black-haired man was coming toward them. He wore a carefully tailored dinner coat, and he seemed to be something of a dandy. He reached the table and Sandy introduced him as Mr. Lewis. He drew a fifth chair to the table. As he did so, Jean noticed idly that he lacked an index finger on the left hand.

SOME OF RURAL PROJECTS TO BE ABANDONED SOON

Director Finds Many of Proposed Programs are Unsuitable

Washington, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Abandonment of some of the rural community projects which his organization took over recently from FERA was forecast today by Dr. Carl C. Taylor, rural resettlement director.

About 15 of the 39 communities "inherited" in various stages of development—from planning to actual construction—are being moved along toward completion, Dr. Taylor said, but the rest are being held up for investigation.

"Some of the projects, in which land purchases and agreements with prospective residents have not been made, definitely will be abandoned," he asserted.

Some Land Unfit

"Some of these were set up on land that isn't good enough," the director explained. "Some were set up with farms too small to support the families working them. Some of them were set up with what might be termed sub-normal housing. Still others were set up to accommodate clients we do not consider eligible—persons without previous farming experience and others too old and decrepit."

Dr. Taylor's organization is swinging away from the idea of subsistence homesteads and part-time employment in new industries as a solution for farm families unable to make a living in their present locations.

Developing Projects

It is developing projects of its own, he revealed, to move such families "into better farming situations"—both in communities of new farm homes and by infiltration into going and successful farm neighborhoods. Part-time industrial employment will be relied upon only in sections where it already is available, he said.

DISTRIBUTION OF SCHOOL MON- EYS IS PUZZLE

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Studying an opinion by Attorney General Otto Kerner, officials in the state auditor's office today were still undecided as to what basis to use in distributing state aid to the public schools.

Auditor Edward J. Barrett's office said it was not clear whether the quarterly payments should be based on the old appropriation of $10,500,000 annually to the state school distributive fund or on the increase to $13,000,000 yearly voted by the legislature in June.

Kerner late yesterday held that the payment should be made on the basis of the old apportionment. The confusion arose from an amendment providing for quarterly instead of monthly payments.

State Treasurer John Steele said he understood the payment to mean that the warrants to the counties for school purposes should be based on the $10,500,000 figure.

Kerner declared the opinion was meant to authorize payments on the increase to $13,000,000.

The cooperation of George E. Schultz, proprietor of the local meat market made it possible for the boys to study different cuts of meat in preparing for the contest. The boys say that they enjoyed the trip and all feel well repaid and learned a good deal that will be of benefit to them.
Freshman Party
The Sophomore class of the high school initiated the freshman class into the high school Friday night at Kersten hall. The entire high school and faculty were invited to be present and enjoy the event. The invitations were written on a design to represent the world. Each freshman was requested to dress to represent a country. Nearly all complied to the request and many of the costumes were very appropriate and some very amusing, which caused much merriment.
Several games were played in the Gym hall before the initiation took place.
After the games the Freshmen were lined up and blindfolded. A Sophomore accompanied them to the Kersten hall, one by one. Many were the screams and frightened calls before they finally reached the hall. Many clever stunts were played on the Freshmen, all taking them very good naturedly. After this more games were enjoyed. Each girl was given a slip of paper on which was the name of a city, each boy was given a slip of paper with the name of a country. The holder of the city was partner with the one holding the country slip in which the city was situated. Refreshments consisting of pop and doughnuts.
The Freshmen declare they never will forget the good time they had and feel indebted to the Fred Fess, the president of the class and the the Washington Senators won the class for the good time.

"Camels don't get your Wind"

SAY THE DETROIT TIGERS 1935 WORLD CHAMPIONS

Here's the line-up on the smoking preference of the new world champions:

19 OUT OF 22 OF THE TIGERS SMOKE CAMELS

MICKEY COCHRANE (below): "The boys say Camels are milder."

PETE FOX (below): "Camels don't get my wind. That's how mild Camels are."

BILL ROGELL (right): "Camels never jangle my nerves, and I smoke all I want. Camels taste better too."

THE TIGERS "BIG FOUR" PITCHERS

Today Detroit glories in its first World Championship! These 1935 Tigers have punched out a story of courage and energy that stands among the masterpieces. They could "take it!" What do the Tigers say about smoking? Here's Mickey Cochrane, dynamic Tiger manager: "One thing the team agree on is their choice of cigarettes—Camels. 19 of the 22 regulars smoke Camels. The Tigers say they can smoke all they want because Camels are so mild that they don't get their wind or upset their nerves." How about taste? Jo-Jo Whitesays: "Camels always taste better." You'll like Camels' mildness too. Camels never upset your nerves or tire your taste.

And OWEN! "I light up a Camel to refresh my energy," says Marvin (left).

GERALD WALKER (right) comments: "Camels make such a mild, tasty smoke."

Here's GOSLIN (above). Says "the Goose": "I switched to Camels long ago. Camels are milder."

● Detroit walks off with baseball's best girl!

I ALSO THINK THAT CAMELS ARE MILD... BETTER FOR STEADY SMOKING

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic... than any other popular brand. (Signed) R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Winston-Salem, N. C.
